Red Boat Lake Fly-in Outpost

Located in the Haliburton Highlands west of Minden, Redboat is an under-fished lake featuring clear, tannin-stained, warm water about 1 mile in length. The gently breaking rocky shoreline supports moderate weed growth in the shallower, soft-bottom areas and back bays. Mid-lake depths range to 40 feet, but the average is 20 feet. The more or less continuous margin of lily pads trace out long portions of the irregular shoreline, and are thick enough to extend outward into deep enough water to hold bass morning, noon and night. Timber blowdowns, logs, and brush extending out from the shore also form a major portion of the bass hideaways. The small to largemouth bass ratio is about 40/60.

The cabin is beautiful and spacious, boasting 600 square feet of space entirely finished inside and
